Sheriff Hooper Returns.

DENVER, September 5.—A Times special from Grand Mesa, September 5th, says: Sheriff Hooper returned to-day from Meeker. He left Meeker Saturday morning, September 3rd, at 9 o'clock. He came through to Grand Mesa in one day, a distance of about two and a half miles from the battle ground. He met the soldiers coming out of the pass. He met Major Dodge and Lieutenant Taylor riding to get fresh horses. Lieutenant Taylor told Hooper that Meeker was killed. Hooper says he saw a number of dead soldiers lying in the road. He saw Thornburgh's body. He had been stripped of his clothing and was lying on his back. He was shot through the body. He saw Wilmot's body. He was shot through the head. He saw Payne's body. He was shot through the head. He saw Dodson's body. He was shot through the head. He saw Lieutenant Taylor's body. He was shot through the head. He saw Lieutenant Taylor's body. The New York Tribune ought to be agreeable reading to the sympathizers in this country of the home ruler and the [illegible]. Geo. W. Ansley writes up political news from the [illegible] and prints [illegible] gives [illegible] Brown and Lynch a slut which he can fill gives the home rule side and judging from the associated press news is the most accurate.

The Leadville Herald Democrat has [illegible] editorially on Herring a question of [illegible]. It thinks it a good deal worse for a [illegible] to take a horse that he won on a horse race, than for a white man to [illegible] a lock of one Indian while he is trying to serve a writ for horse [illegible] on another Indian. The Herald Democrat is also very much shocked at that kind of sentimentality which objects to whites buying the scalps of Indians, fighting squaws and stealing ponies. The Herald Democrat has a perfect right to its [illegible], and will not [illegible] to take out a patent to protect its rights to them.

The Herald-Democrat says:

[illegible] got to the position it [illegible] Kentucky, we believe in [illegible] we've the words of a [illegible] of battle that a [illegible] of [illegible] and [illegible] we are yet to [illegible] gain [illegible] in the [illegible] Bob Lucy [illegible] not to [illegible]

[illegible] Bank, club in [illegible] recently celebrated the taking of Fort Hatteras. The [illegible] was remarkable for two [illegible]. One was by General Butler in which he addressed personal to distinguished [illegible] after the union soldiers had [illegible]. He says he will [illegible] as early as in 1860 in the house of representatives. General Toombs spoke at the same meeting. He said that the people of the South would stand as a wall of rock against the service pension because it makes no distinction between the service of ninety days and of four years and a half. The distinction he makes is a right one. Few of the ninety days men, except [illegible] in the [illegible] call of 1861, did any [illegible] worthy of reward. They were simply put on guard and garrison duty to take the place of the better disciplined veterans who went to the front. Under these circumstances, they ought not to be treated on the same basis as the veterans of a hundred battle fields. The line ought to distinguish between those who enlisted to fight and those who enlisted to do garrison duty, between those who enlisted from patriotic motives and those who enlisted for the sake of a bounty or as hired substitutes. Not every man who wore the blue deserves well of his country. This distinction should be made at once the honor may be the greater for those who fought for love of country endured great hardships, and faced many perils.

General H. G. Thomas now paymaster in the United States army and resident for two years in Utah, has written a very interesting article on the Colored Freedmen of Petersburg for the September Century. General Thomas commanded a brigade of the two brigades of the colored division that participated in the assault after the mine explosion in July, 1864. His description vividly and strongly [illegible] of the [illegible] of the [illegible] in that action. Of the 2,200 men he lost thirty-six officers and 422 men, a total loss of about 19 per cent. The loss in officers was about 25 per cent, also proving that the men were bravely led. This month of the Century has two other articles on the same subject, one entitled The Tragedy of the Crater and the other The Dash into the Crater. The whole affair was badly managed from beginning to end. The failure was due to the fact that the general officers kept in bomb proof intrenchments. The only melancholy fact connected with this is that General Potter was the only division commander who had courage enough to enter the crater and personally superintend the movements of his men. General Potter was not made a brigadier general in the regular army until very recently because he was considered too soft for Cleveland and does not believe in the extermination of the rebel dog. [illegible] General W. F. Bartlett was one of the brigade commanders who distinguished himself in the crater tragedy. He knows that, at the anniversary of the battle of Lexington in 1875 he and the most eloquent protest got gloves against the bloody shirt. We know there are more men who vote the republican ticket that were gallant [illegible]

There is in the union army during the rebellion than there are who vote the [illegible] ticket. But many of the [illegible] who are making so much noise now at the bloody shirt, either never were in the army or stayed carefully in bomb proof [illegible] safe in times of danger [illegible] before, to remember that the Potters and the Bartletts who never enlisted their asses to go where they dare not lead hold different opinions and their services in the army make their opinions worthy of respect.

The subject of the Ute war will be [illegible] discussion until after election. Democratic papers are trying to make political capital of the [illegible] Republican papers are trying to [illegible] Governor Adams. Both sides are wrong. The Ute war should be a Non-Partisan question. The state should [illegible] Governor Adams, and he deserves great credit for the prudent manner in which he conducted the war. When the officials at Washington were informed that the Utes were on the warpath they were informed that the people of Garfield county would be among the first to be [illegible] and that the people of Garfield county were ready to [illegible] Governor Adams was right in declining to [illegible] Governor Adams was right in declining to [illegible] Governor Adams was right in declining

EL PASO'S SCHOOLS.

Annual Report of County Superintendent Paton.

Summary and Statistics for the Year 1867.

New Buildings and Increased Education-al Facilities.

The Financial Statement--Outstanding Bonds.

M. S. A. P. Paton county superintendent of schools, has completed his official report for the school year. The report is full and complete in every detail and has been compiled with great care by Mr Paton who has received much valuable assistance from Mr C B Firowin

Below we give a tabulated summary from the superintendent's report which will be found to contain much of interest to citizens and those interested in school matters particularly

[illegible]

The report shows very little change from last year's figures There is, in fact, thus far a slight diminution in the enrollment of pupils, but the school census shows an [illegible] of the total school population

During the school year new districts have been formed at Palmer Lake Orangeville and South Monument. Five school houses have been built in districts Nos 13, 16, 32, 38 and 44. They are all neat painted frame buildings, costing from $700 to $1250. Four log houses were replaced by frames, and an addition has been built on to the Fountain school house, which now contains three good sized and convenient rooms. Two handsome and expensive brick school buildings have been erected in this city since the commencement of the school year, the Garfield in the Second ward, and the Lincoln in the Fourth ward. A large commodious and elegant building now adorns each ward of the city and our facilities for youthful instruction are unsurpassed by any town of the size in the country

The county schools are also well equipped and none but efficient and well recommended teachers are employed

The cost of public instruction in the county amounted to $4 17 per month for each pupil attending The highest average cost was in District No 13 4 h Cross where it amounted to $7 40 to each pupil per month average attendance The lowest average cost was $2 02, in Colorado City In this city the cost was $2 96 per month, average attendance. The greatest number of days taught in any district was 180, in Colorado Springs

Following is the financial summary for the school year

FINANCIAL SUMMARY.

	Received.	Paid
Amount on hand September 1, 1866	$5,801 66
Principal special fund	9,565 25
Principal special fund	20,000 00
Interest fund	3,197 05
From all other sources	3,731 07
Total receipts	$41,822 40	$41,822 40
Paid for current expenses		4,706 81
For sites, build'g, furniture		9,901 62
Interest on bonds paid		1,259 45
Total expenditures		$15,867 21
Balance in hands of county treasurer, June 30, 1867		6,055 19
Totals	$41,822 40	$41,822 40

The report shows a very satisfactory state of affairs, and reflects credit upon the intelligence of the county and its appreciation of educational advantages The showing will compare favorably with that of new counties in the west and the prospects for more gratifying results in the future.

The Coming Attraction.

On next Saturday evening at the opera house will be presented Mr Edward Harris's dramatic picture of city life, in three acts and six scenes, entitled "Old Lavender" This is one of the strongest attractions that has ever appeared in our city. The company consists of forty people, including Dave Griffin's celebrated orchestra. The Denver Republican in speaking of their opening performance in that city says

The plays of Mr. Harrigan have won more than a local reputation. The ob-

Doctors at Washington

Washington Special to the Denver Tribune: The Congress of American physicians and surgeons, which has been in session in this city for the past week, closed its labors this evening with a grand banquet at the Arlington hotel. The attendance upon the sessions of the congress has been very large, and the interest manifested in the proceedings has been unprecedented. The meetings were held in the hall of the house of representatives, and the large number of delegates in attendance filled the hall to its utmost capacity. The congress was called to order by Dr Billings, surgeon general of the United States army, who delivered the address of welcome. Dr Billings was followed by Dr Agnew of New York, president of the congress, who delivered the annual address. Dr Agnew's address was a masterly production, and was listened to with the most profound attention by the large audience present. At the conclusion of the address Dr Agnew announced that the ninth international medical congress is now open for organization, and for the transaction of business.

The chairman of the executive committee then proceeded to nominate the general officers of the congress. Dr Nathan Smith Davis of Chicago was chosen president of the congress by acclamation

Dr. John B Hamilton, supervising surgeon general of the U S marine hospital service, having been elected secretary general of the congress, nominated Dr Agnew upon the vice presidents of the congress, and they were elected by acclamation The list contains one hundred or [illegible] The only [illegible] in the list are ex-presidents of the American Medical association and surgeons general of the army and navy Foreigners on the list include all who came as delegates from their respective governments, together with many others of distinction

The secretary general read a report giving an account of the manner in which the congress was invited to Washington and the labors of the committees in the work of organizing. This work was now complete and he submitted the programme and a volume of abstracts.

Dr A. Y. P. Garrett, chairman of the committee of arrangements announced the [illegible] for the congress. It included a conversazione this evening at the pension office an informal reception by the president and Mrs Cleveland to-morrow a lawn party by Hon Josiah Dent a reception by Secretary and Mrs Whitney a reception and hop at the pension office and to Mt Vernon upon United States vessels, and an excursion to Niagara Falls. He said it was a source of [illegible] and embarrassment that September had been selected for the congress and the committee felt it their duty to explain the action of that hospitality for which Washington was so widely known. It was due, he said, to the wishes of the many of those who were, at other seasons wont to open their doors to visitors

President Davis next introduced Secretary of State Bayard, who welcomed the congress to Washington in an eloquent address, and said in part We welcome this congress as the guardians of sanitation of the nations In your profession we recognize the noblest school of human usefulness and participants in the progress of development of the laws of cure, mitigation of suffering prolongation of human existence and efforts to discover the true principles and conditions by which life can be made worth living We have learnt to appreciate our debt to those whose highest reward is the still small voice of gratitude and the consciousness of benefaction to the human race Gentlemen I confidently promise your convention a worthy audience—but alone the members of your profession here represented, nor the limited number whom the building can contain, but that greater audience to whose ear on the wings of the trusty force your message will be daily borne far and wide to the listening ear of more than sixty millions of American citizens Sure am I that your message will be worthy, and equally that your thoughtful deliveries will be welcomed by a continent

The welcome was acknowledged and responded to by Dr Wm Harris Lloyd inspector general R N, in behalf of Great Britain Dr Leon Lafertie, of Paris, in behalf of France, Prof P J Uma, of Handberg, on the part of Germany, Senator W Stromola, of Naples for Italy and Sir Chas Keyhot, of St Petersburg, representing the government of Russia Dr Uma spoke in German and Dr Stimmola and Lafertie in French President Davis having called one of the vice presidents to the chair, proceeded to deliver his opening address of the close of which the presiding officer a vote of thanks to President Davis which was acceded to It was then announced that the congress had adjourned till 10 o'clock to-morrow

Base Ball.

New York, September 5 Representatives of the American association clubs met in secret session at the Fifth Avenue hotel to day. After adjournment it was announced that the percentage problem had been adopted Under the new rule the visiting club is to receive 30 per cent of the gate receipts but no matter what the attendance the visiting club shall receive a guarantee of $1,500 St Louis will be returned in the association instead of go over to the league

For a long time there has been a great demand on the part of tourists, health-seekers and others for a map of Colorado Springs and vicinity that would convey an accurate idea of the distances to the various points of interest in this locality. We are glad to announce that Captain M. J. De Coursey has now such a map in course of preparation. This map, in addition to showing all the places of interest in this locality, from Austin's Bluffs to the summit of Pike's Peak will [illegible] so that they can be reached and also give their distances from each other. The map will also include a comprehensive outline of Colorado Springs and Colcord Heights, after which the map is named. It will be printed on durable material and mounted on rollers. The price of the map is $8.00 and as a limited number will be prepared those wishing to possess [illegible] themselves with one or more of these maps will do well to leave their orders with Captain De Coursey at his office.

A subscription is being circulated among the citizens to raise money for the purpose of giving a reception and banquet to the members of Company A on their return from the Pi-ute War. The boys are responding quite liberally, and the prospects are that enough money will be raised to give the boys a [illegible] reception. This is a commendable movement, whether the war was ill or [illegible] and no necessary or otherwise, the Colorado National guards have done their duty, and they deserve credit and honor for the part they took in the Ute Country. A special to-night at the [illegible] which [illegible] attention. The record in the [illegible] of which Colorado [illegible] may well feel proud. They have [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] of the [illegible] and Ute War, though fortunately [illegible] Probably in that they will all return [illegible] Many of them were [illegible] and they have well stood [illegible] for days of hunger and fatigue [illegible] north country. Our [illegible] the soil ground with an abundance of [illegible] to protect them from the cold, and have gone hungry for days together. A public demonstration or [illegible] of their efforts they richly deserve and [illegible] way repay them for what they have undergone. If the [illegible] should commence to move there [illegible] a [illegible] proposition [illegible] the surplus will be turned over to the company to aid them in fitting up their new armory, which is now in process of construction.
